

Whitney Blake Dean is a Texas sweetheart, born and raised, with a glowing personality that complements her freckles and fiery red locks! She received her BFA in Acting from Texas State University, which allowed her to preform in the Austin Area as well. She has acted in everything from Experimental Theatre – as one of the founding members of Theatre Synesthesia (Austin Texas) under the direction of the late and unfathomably artistic, Jeremy O. Torres – to Shakespeare, and everything in between. She found a love of collaborating with unproduced/new plays after working with Eugene Lee’s Black and Latino Playwriting Conference, 3 years in a row, and continued that admiration by casting, acting, and helping produce staged readings of MFA Playwrights at TxSt, under the leadership of Jim Price. This is Whitney’s first Los Angeles production since recently moving to the area with her incredibly loving and supportive husband, Josh! “Joshua, you are my everything and my forever! Thank you for... well, being you!” Whitney is so excited to be a part of Towne Street Theatre and can’t wait to see what’s in store next!
